Introduction to the IPCE Law School

Introducing the IPCE Law School and the Practical Vocational Programme for Candidate Attorneys

The IPCE Law School (IPCE-LS) was established in 2012 and is accredited by the Legal Practice Council (LPC).

There are a limited number of places available and applicants undergo a selection process before being accepted. An application form is attached to this information sheet and serves only as an application form – your acceptance is not guaranteed. All applicants will be informed via letter of the outcome of their application.

Purpose of the IPCE's Practical Vocational Programme for Candidate Attorneys:

To provide law graduates with the opportunity to acquire and develop practical legal skills required to become competent legal practitioners.

The primary benefit of attending the IPCE-LS' Practical Vocational Programme is that law graduates gain a comprehensive set of competencies, which they may not gain as candidate legal practitioners during their period of service under a practical vocational training contract.

Pedagogical Learning and Delivery

The IPCE-LS' Practical Vocational Programme consists of modules as prescribed by the regulations of the LPA. Learning is experience-centred to ensure that candidates will be able to perform on an entry level with minimal supervision.

Candidates learn within a practical context, in a simulated law firm environment. Each candidate is allocated to a 'law firm' - each 'law firm' has access to an office and to computers and a law library.

Mock-courts and practical work form the foundation of the learning. Candidates exchange pleadings and draft the necessary court papers in action and application proceedings.

The medium of instruction is English, and the learning is provided by practising legal practitioners.

Introduction

Before admission as a legal practitioner an LLB graduate must serve as a candidate legal practitioner with a practicing legal practitioner for 24 months and attend a short, structured course approved by the Legal Practice Council (LPC).

The course is currently as per reg 6 in terms of s109 (1)(a) of the Legal Practice Act 28 of 2014 (LPA). This compulsory course for candidate legal practitioners has been approved to prepare candidates for the admission examinations.

The course consists of two modules:

- Module I is designed to assist students to prepare for the first paper in the Admission Examination.
- Module II is designed to assist students prepare for the second, third and fourth papers in the Admission Examination.

The course is presented on a full-time; part-time; and evening basis.

The entire compulsory course for candidate legal practitioners has to be completed within 36 months of the registration of the practical vocational training (PVT) contract in terms of reg 6(a)(ii) or the participant will be required to repeat the programme.

Who may attend?

- Registered candidate legal practitioners, during their terms of service under their PVT contracts or after completion of their PVT contracts.
- Preference is given to candidate legal practitioners in their final year of their PVT contracts.

Full time course

23-30 days split in two sessions.

- Module I is presented so as to assist candidate legal practitioners with their preparation for the first paper of the Admission Examination.
- Module II is presented with the focus on preparation for the second to fourth papers of the Admission Examination.

Times

Evening online course: Training takes place from approximately 17:30 to 21:00.

Code of conduct and satisfactory attendance

1. Candidate legal practitioners are expected to attend and participate actively in all training activities in a satisfactory manner. Mere physical presence does not constitute satisfactory attendance.
2. If a candidate legal practitioner is unable to attend a lecture for whatever reason, they will be marked as 'absent'. This includes sickness, family responsibility leave or duty at their firm. In exceptional cases, a 'catch-up' class can be arranged with the course coordinator at a fee.

Candidates should note the citation of Ex parte Postma 1999(3) SA762 (T) where Van Dijkhorst J commented on satisfactory attendance. 'The applicant was absent for four out of the 23 days of the course which was definitely not satisfactory attendance'.

3. IPCE suggests that candidate legal practitioners ensure that they have a 100% attendance in order to avoid complications with their application for admission as a legal practitioner.
4. Candidate legal practitioners should further note that late arrival and/or early departure is equal to non-attendance.
5. Candidate legal practitioners must–
 - prepare adequately for every training session;
 - conduct themselves in a courteous manner towards fellow attendees, instructors and course coordinators;

- execute the prescribed evaluation procedure pertaining to the course; and
 - refrain from disrupting training activities in anyway.
6. The LPC regards any fraudulent actions regarding the attendance registers in a very serious light and severe action will be taken by the LPC on proof of such misconduct by candidate legal practitioners. The LPC reserves the right to terminate the attendance of an attendee who does not comply with the code of conduct. No attendance certificate will be issued under such circumstances.
 7. Fraudulent entries in the attendance register, is a serious breach of ethical conduct and will be reported to the LPC.
 8. Attendance and preparation are key factors to successfully complete the programme.
 9. Candidates are expected to be proficient in knowledge of the substantive law.
 10. Due to severe time constraints, candidates are expected to do independent self-study prior to attending lectures.
